

Saving for College

FREE Interactive Online Presentation

A college education is one of the best investments in a child's future. It is also one of the most expensive.

The University of Notre Dame invites you to join a free presentation to learn more about 529 college savings plans, an important college savings vehicle, and how the plans can be used to manage college costs. 529 college savings plans allow you to save not only for your child(ren) and grandchild(ren) but also for others (e.g., nieces, nephews, godchildren, friends).

Join us for an interactive online presentation entitled "Saving for College" on Tuesday, June 2, 2015 at 11:30am ET.

During the event we will:

- Introduce the importance of creating a college savings plan;
- Provide an overview of various savings options, focusing on 529 plans;
- Provide details on the Indiana sponsored 529 Plans including the tax benefits of participating in these plans;
- Provide details on the Private College 529 Plan including how participating in this plan locks in today's tuition at over 275 private colleges including the University of Notre Dame; and
- Discuss how these savings plans compliment financial aid.

Presenting this information will be:

- Jon McCallie, Student Financial Aid Counselor, Office of Financial Aid, University of Notre Dame
- Troy Montigney, Executive Director, Indiana Education Savings Authority
- Joseph Russo, Director of Financial Aid, University of Notre Dame (retired), & Private College 529 Plan
- Mary Scott, Saving for College Program, Director, University of Notre Dame

RSVP: To attend the online session, please register at savingforcollege.nd.edu/webinars. The instructions to connect to the live online presentation will be sent shortly thereafter. The presentation will be streamed live via the internet with an interactive Q&A session. If you have any questions, please contact Mary Scott at sav4coll@nd.edu.
